The purpose of the conference, which continues until the 20th, is to study changing conditions in missions, to know the missionary message of the Bible, and to inspire a greater zeal for more Christlike living among the people in the nation as well as in the whole world.

To meet these ends the program has been arranged to begin each morning in Sage Chapel, following which the regular classes begin.

Missionary Education is the subject for the classes beginning at 10:15 daily. The subjects to be discussed are "China, the Key to the Future of the World," "Building a New Social and Political Order," and "New Health for Body and Soul." Bible study is at 11:15 daily.

Special events for afternoons will be a reception to missionaries on Saturday at 4:30, visitations to the literature tables, and classes on music programs for women's societies given by Marguerite Hazzard of the church school music department of Union Seminary, New York city. Vesper services on round top will be at sunset.

Chittam of India, wife of the first Indian bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, who spoke on "Missionaries and Nationals"; Thursday, denomination rallies; Friday, Anne Seesholtz, Ph. D., executive secretary, council of women for home missions, "Revive Thy Church, O Lord, Beginning with Me"; Saturday, pageant entitled "Living for God," directed by Miss Hazzard, Mrs. Walter C. Frank Cary, missionary at Otaru, Japan, under the American Board, will speak on "Thinking Constructively Toward Japan." Monday night a model session of the disarmament conference at Geneva will take place. The closing session of the conference will be held Tuesday night when Amy O. Welcher speaks on "Lives Triumphant in the Orient."

Baseball Friday

The Northfield A. A. will face one of their most formidable opponents of the season when the Greenfield Mohawks make an appearance here Friday night, July 15. This team is considered to be one of the two fastest teams in Greenfield.

The local management will have a surprise in store for the fans, for our old friend "Dick" Miller will don a uniform for the first time since he had his operation two years ago. Also there is a possibility that our star pitcher of a few years ago, Stanley Bistrek, will toe the slab for Northfield. Let's all turn out and give the local boys a lot of support and encouragement for the game. Come on! Let's go! This week Friday night at 6:30.

Hospital Day Is July 29th

On Friday afternoon, July 29, from two-thirty to five thirty, a food sale will be held on the lawn of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ambert G. Moody, Highland Ave. for the benefit of the Franklin County Hospital.

The complete summer committee to carry on this sale will be announced in next week's Herald. There is a meeting today, Friday of the Northfield Board, at the home of the chairman, to finish plans for the twenty-ninth. The following are the members of the Board who direct the work in Northfield for the Franklin County Hospital: Mrs. A. G. Moody, honorary member; Mesdames G. E. Bond, T. F. Darby, J. W. Field, E. S. Frary, E. F. Howard, C. L. Johnson, H. A. Lewis, E. Lilly, Willis Parker, W. P. Stanley, C. M. Steadler, N. P. Wood, Mrs. W. G. Webber, chairman.

"God give us men. The time demands. Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and willing hands, Men whom the lust of office does not kill, Men whom the spoils of office can not buy, Men who possess opinions and a will; Men who have honor; men who will not lie; Men who can stand before a demagogue And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking; Tall men, sun crowned, who live above the fog In public duty and in private thinking. For while the rabble with their thumb worn creeds, Their large professions and their little deeds Mingle in selfish strife, Lo, Freedom weeps, Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps."

This famous prayer of seventy years ago by J. G. Holland may well be offered today. Mr. Holland was a "man of letters," a resident of Massachusetts and is buried in the Springfield, Mass. cemetery where a fine bronze portrait by Augustus St. Gaudens adorns his tomb.

District Judge Off To Alaska

Judge Philip H. Ball of our District Court at Greenfield with Mrs. Ball, Philip, Jr., Ralph, and daughter, Dorothy, left last week for an eight to ten weeks' motor and boat trip to Alaska.

From July 26 to 30 they will be in Seattle, Wash., to attend the 53rd annual tournament of the National Archery association. Mrs. Ball, the only woman ever to hold office in the association, is this year vice-president and a governor of the club.

Leaving Greenfield they will drive to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and travel westward through Canada. They will ferry Lake Michigan and spend considerable time in Glacier National park, which Arthur K. Adams, a geologist, and cousin of Mrs. Ball, helped to survey.

The trip to Alaska from Seattle will be made by boat, returning September 10. The return trip will be made through southern California to Yellowstone park, Reno, Nevada, Denver, Col., and Kentucky.

Town Tax Refund Will Show Decrease

Northfield's share of state income and corporation taxes will show a decrease of about 30 per cent under the 1931 rebate, according to figures released at the State house Friday last. The amount to be received this year will be $8,637.19 as compared to $11,971.05 last year.

This decrease is close to preliminary estimates made by the local assessors, but the reduced income from this source will have a material effect on the 1932 tax rate.

While the complete returns from the state have not been received by the assessors, Mr. A. H. Mattison of our local Board said the figures were not a surprise to him as income and corporation returns have been far below last year's figures. He also said the real estate valuation this year would show but little increase over the figures of 1932.

It is not expected that Northfield's tax rate will be compiled for some weeks.

The amounts the various towns will receive in Franklin County are as follows:

Splendid Service At Unitarian Church

Last Sunday morning at the Unitarian Church a large audience gathered to hear Dr. Frank Oliver Hall of the Church of the Divine Paternity, New York city. He preached from the "Sermon on the Mount" and urged a more courageous and literal interpretation of the known teachings of Jesus, expressing the opinion that one reason for the tendency of the young people to leave the church was due to a lack of courage on the part of clergy and laymen in applying the precepts of the Master to modern problems.

Miss Marion Webster sang a solo and Rev. C. C. Conner led in prayer.

Mass. and Vermont Agree On Truck Traffic

He publishes this record to encourage any one who has a small plot of ground, to raise their own berries.

Broadcast Failed

Radio fans in Northfield and elsewhere in Franklin County were disappointed that static interfered when Floyd Gibbons, "Minute Man" reporter of the air, broadcast Friday last on board the "Minute Man," crack Chicago express of the Boston & Maine railroad, from 6:30 to 6:45 (E. D. T.). The speeding train, on the way from Chicago to Boston over Boston & Maine rails, was moving at 60 miles an hour between Fitchburg and Boston while the broadcast was in progress.

Static was such that no satisfaction was derived from the experiment.

Turtle Comes Back To His Old Home

A turtle belonging to Susanna Wilder of Northfield Mountain has returned to his home after an absence of three years. The turtle was found in a field several years ago and was kept as a pet and named Wobble. A hole was bored in his shell and a long string attached and fastened to a porch post. He seemed content on a diet of bits of meat and fish and spoonfuls of milk. He was allowed to wander untied about the kitchen in winter. One day some men repairing a stove left the door open and the turtle disappeared. A few days ago a turtle was seen to approach the house up the driveway at the fastest pace of which a turtle is capable. He was positively identified as the missing Wobble by the hole in his shell. He is now occupying his former haunts about the premises and shows no desire to resume his wanderings. He is a Quaker Tortoise weighing about two pounds.

Lyle, proprietor of a paint and china store in the Barber building, in Brattleboro whose advertisements have often been read in the Northfield Herald was found unconscious in his garage at his home in West Brattleboro by his daughter, Mrs. Burton Crafts, when she returned home last Friday evening. ## When America Forgets God

The best way to become unpopular is to prophesy judgment and destruction. Every generation likes to hug to itself the delusion that it is permanent.

If we are to discover the future of civilization there are only three sources of information. We have prophecy, and it indicates that the end of this age will be a time of distress and confusion. We have history, and history indicates that there always have been war and corruption. Then we have human nature. As human nature has failed in the past, how dare any glowing optimism expect it to succeed in the future?

History, geology, archeology and the Bible tell us a crisis story. Nations and civilizations have gone on uneventfully for centuries, and suddenly have been plunged into chaos or blotted out of existence. It was not mere poetry when the prophet of old said, "The wicked shall be turned into Shool, and all nations that forget God." The lesson of all history is that God will eventually attain his purpose. Nebuchadnezzar may defy God, but God's final answer is destruction. Napoleon may say to deity, "You rule up there and I will rule down here," but God's answer is the island of St. Helena.

There is no reason to believe that America can defy the divine law and continue to exist. If an age produces godlessness it will produce lawlessness, and moral decline will bring moral disaster. Rev. Will H. Houghton of New York in July issue of Record of Christian Work.

EDITORIAL

Taxpayers' associations are becoming, rapidly, one of the greatest influences for good in municipal government. They have been springing up throughout New England with great rapidity during the past year, largely through the efforts of the New England Council.

Serious-minded citizens and taxpayers have found them a means of effecting sensible economies in town and city government and of re-budgeting in accordance with ability to pay.

Such an organization might appeal to the citizens of Northfield if for no other reason than to create wide interest in town affairs. The organization, to follow the lines laid down by similar groups which have accomplished much in other communities, should be non-partisan and non-political.

Starting right now, such a group could plan for the year to come by making a study of the various departments of the town government with the sole purpose of arriving at a well-planned budget.

The taxpayers' association is no place for crank-notions or chronic grievances or for the promotion of candidacies for town office. Its function, where it has been of value, has been in a co-operative effort to re-adjust municipal expenditures and incidentally to reduce taxes.

The United States is afflicted with more than 500,000 tax-spending bodies. A single county in Illinois has exactly 419 governmental taxing organizations. Many other counties, in many states, show a similar condition.

It is no wonder that the American taxpayer is being driven to distraction. At a time when incomes have fallen and when many millions of men are unemployed, the politicians demand more and more revenue. Increasing taxation menaces America's future.

In Massachusetts we have too many state departments and commissions, some of them furthering a lot of unnecessary projects at the expense of the taxpayer. We also seem to have too many legislators more intent upon holding their jobs and keeping up their own salaries than in cutting down state expenses.

"Al" "Raddio" Smith had his friends all tuned up to the song "The Sidewalks of New York" and "east side, west side" made us weary some four years ago. Now Roosevelt, (Franklin not Theodore) would have us sing "Happy Days are here again," as his presidential marching song. We will probably hear it very much during the days to come but after next March it too will pass into history and we will shudder at its refrain. Perhaps the new version of "Lucky days are here again" would sound more emphatically with a Republican President.

The special taxing of utility corporations seems to be an unwise proposition as these taxes do not come out of the Treasury of the corporation from its profits but are passed on to the consumer in higher or additional charges. Any tax on a utility is nothing more or less than a direct tax on the users of utility services. The industry has no way of obtaining revenue save by its sales—and as taxes already take ten per cent or better of electric company gross income, it means that consumers' power bills now carry a heavy tax load. As the great bulk of customers of any utility are persons of moderate means, the small house is hit hardest.

"The greatest asset any nation can have is the spirit of its people," said George B. Cortelyou, President, Consolidated Gas Company of New York, "and the greatest danger that can menace any nation is the breakdown of that spirit. That spirit is still with us. It will carry us through. However unfortunate our present economic condition, it is not as bad as it is painted by our professional pessimists. Not all the entries are on the debit side. We have again learned—we seem always to have to learn these things again—some wholesome truths that should profit us in the future. We have learned the folly of living in a fool's paradise. We are rid of the hallucination of 'easy money.' We have shed the delusion of 'something for nothing.' We have turned our eyes from mirage to reality. We have come back to earth. These are no small gains."

The demand for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the activity of certain Congressional leaders to force the issue by modification without submitting it first to the vote of the people is to deny the sovereign act of self-determination to the people of the nation. Whatever may be said as to the merits of the "plank" on prohibition in either the Republican or Democratic party much is misunderstood, but it would seem that the Democratic plank would force the issue and the Republicans would place determination by vote upon its citizens. It is fine to hear

James R. Garfield state that as a Republican he would stump the country in behalf of the Republican ticket, and that "we will be unalterably opposed to any modification of the Volstead act, opposed to repeal, and everything else, except to give the people the right to vote on the issue. Until they have expressed their sentiment at the polls there will be no change in the administration attitude on prohibition."

Poet's Corner

THE ANGELIC HUSBAND

There are husbands who are pretty,
There are husbands who are witty,
There are husbands who in public are as smiling as the morn;
There are husbands who are healthy
There are famous ones and wealthy,
But the real angelic husband—well, he's never yet been born.

Some for strength of love are noted,
Who are really so devoted,
That whenever their wives are absent they are lonesome and forlorn;
And when now and then you'll find one
Who's a fairly good and kind one
Yet the real angelic husband—oh! he's never yet been born.

So the woman who is mated
To a man who may be voted
As "pretty fair" should cherish him forever and a day,
For the real angelic creature! Perfect, quite in every feature! He has never been discovered, and he won't be, so they say.

NATURES CARNIVAL

Come with me to the woods
Just as twilight begins to fall,
To hear and see, bird and beast,
Take part in the carnival ball.

A fleet jack rabbit rushes past
Like some one in despair.
While a fox noiseless and cunning
Steals away from his lair.

An owl hoots in the larch,
The turtle goes, zum-zum, by the brook
The cricket, friend of all, chirps
Unseen in his cool, mossy nook.

The frogs try out the bass,
The breeze the sighing violin,
Until the whippoorwill sounds his note
For the symphony to begin.

Then the stars get the signal
And each takes up the tune,
While the countless tiny fire flies
Dance gaily 'neath the summer moon.

Helen Bistrek.

PICTURES

In leisure hour I chanced to stroll
Through an exhibition hall,
Great works of art by masters old
Adorned the lofty walls.
The subjects ranged from forms of men
To landscapes wondrous fair,
The greatest skill of ages past
Was represented there.
From colors bold and richly deep
To tints of rainbow hue,
The highest ideals of the brain
On canvas, this I knew.

Yet I went home unsatisfied,
I longed for something more.
I turned my eyes in discontent,
Out thru the open door,
And what a picture there I saw,
Set in the oaken frame!
Yet a thousand times I had seen it
The sky and my grassy lane.
Yes, a thousand times I had gazed
At it as it lay before me,
But to its beauty been blind,
Because I had sought not beauty,

And those who seek only shall find.

This picture, no artist could paint it
No matter how long he might strive.

My longing was changed to contentment
The picture I saw was alive!
Blue sky with little clouds sailing,
Breezes just swaying the leaves,
Changing greens in the meadow,
The clump of whispering birch trees.

Sunlight and shifting shadows
Up by the pasture knoll,
And the key to the whole live picture,
My toddling three-year-old.

The masters have painted great pictures,
And fame has been their reward,
But no one can give life to his subjects
But that Artist supreme, nature's God.

County Candidate For Commissioner Statement Made

Petitions are in circulation in Northfield for the nomination of Charles H. Holmes of Erving for County Commissioner and are being signed readily. It is also announced that Walter H. Ray Jr. of Turners Falls will enter the campaign, thus making two aspirants for the offices now held by County Commissioners Burnham and Avery. As these gentlemen have held these offices so long, this paper suggested recently that it was "time to retire".

Mr. Ray has made an announcement as follows:
"I believe that the time is almost opportune for a return to the basic principle of self-government and that all public officials should be servants of the people in fact, instead of in name only."

"I believe that the strictest economy should be observed in the conduct of all public business and that every effort should be made to reduce the tax burden."

"I believe that the spending of public funds should receive even more careful consideration than the spending of personal funds and that in all cases the honest convictions of the citizens should be the rule and guide of the conduct of public servants."

"If the citizens of Franklin County nominate and elect me to the office of County Commissioner, I shall be guided by the above principles in the administration of the office."

Mr. Ray was born in Orange, August 30, 1886, and moved to Turners Falls at the age of five. He attended the public schools and was graduated from Turners Falls High school, class of 1906. He is in the general insurance business and has been interested in local, state and national politics for many years. He is a former member of Republican town committee, serving as chairman. He is widely known throughout the county.

Disarmament

Next Monday Eve At Auditorium

A model session of the Geneva Disarmament Conference pertaining to the Presentation of the Petitions by representatives of 52 nations will be given by the Northfield Foreign Missionary Conference next Monday night at 7:45 o'clock. Members of the faculty, the Committee, and a number of local people are to take part in the program, including Mr. Albert A. Moody, and Mr. Harry A. Erickson.

Of special importance to the people of this vicinity is the fact that President Mary E. Woolley of Mount Holyoke College and Mary Dingman, an alumna of the Northfield Seminary, both took leading part in the actual proceedings at Geneva. These two characters as well as the 13 others will be represented.

Since there are many nationalists at the conference or working on the campus, it is planned to use as many of these as possible to represent their own country in the procession of the Nations and Presentation of Petitions on behalf of the Women of the World. The casts of characters to be represented follows: Mr. Arthur Henderson, President; Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League of Nations; M. Titulesco, President of the Eleventh Assembly; Presentation of Petition from the Press of the Netherlands; Dr. Mary E. Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College, representing the United States; Mary Dingman, President of the Disarmament Committee of the Women's International Organizations; Mme. Steenberghe-Engelringhe, for the International Union of Catholic Women's Organizations; Doctor Muller, for the Christian International Organizations; Viscount Cecil, for the International Federation of League of Nations Societies; A tribute to Briand by M. Paul Roncour, France; and M. Hyman, Belgium. M. Joubert, for the International Federation of Trade Unions; M. Henri Pinchot, for the International Conference of Disabled Soldiers and ex-Servicemen; James Frederick Green, Representative of the Intercollegiate Disarmament Council; and Ambassador Madariag, of Spain.

About Agriculture. Hay Crop Off

Reports of crop conditions as of July 1, received by President E. H. Thomson of the Federal Land Bank of Springfield, show that the hay crop is about 75 per cent of normal in Western Massachusetts, old meadows being especially light this year.

Other crops are reported as promising. A good potato yield is forecast, the conditions of the corn crop are uneven and the same is true of the onion crop in the Connecticut Valley. No attempt is made at a tobacco forecast this early in the season. Light fertilizing is held partially responsible for crops being below normal in many cases, this being due in turn to scarcity of capital and a disposition on the farmer's part to play safe and operate on a conservative basis.

From many parts of the first federal farm loan district come reports that numerous farmers have improved their financial position by eliminating debts, even at some sacrifice, and established themselves largely on a cash basis. Credit has been scarce at the country banks, and many retail stores that formerly carried large book accounts have been obliged to narrow or discontinue their credit business.

Few farm foreclosures are reported in this district, and the morale of the farmers is said to be well maintained and some reports say it is improving. While there has been no such extensive "back to the land" movement in New England, as has been reported from the Central West, many hill farms are being bought by city folk, some for summer homes and others for use the year round. The general story from all over the district is that there is little farm buying nowadays by farmers.

"March On" America

Picturing the progress of the United States in a huge historical spectacle in which the theme of the George Washington Bi-Centennial is interwoven, the Eastern States Exposition management announces the super-feature "March On, America," as the chief attraction of its outdoor evening program at the forthcoming 16th annual fall exhibition from Sept. 18 to 24.

The scene itself will be several hundred feet long with a huge 60 foot arch enclosing the settings for a series of stage presentations. Featuring these will be the Pavlov-Ukrainian ballet, a group of talented artists, and a special musical score will enhance the attractiveness of each episode. Opening with a tribute to George Washington in a magnificent colonial setting the action of "March On, America," proceeds swiftly. The romance of the olden west is typified by the rolling prairie backed by distant hills and the stirring stories of the pioneers with their wagon trains, the forty-niners and finally the ranchers will be retold again. The "March on the West" will be followed by the "March on the Southland" which will recall vividly the days of the Old South and the Civil War with the brighter side depicting a New Orleans Mardi Gras. The "March on the North" will be a scene laid in the winter rivers of a New England climate and the finale will be a summary of a nation's progress in "March On, America."

Each evening's performance will close with a monster fireworks display in which set pieces, aerial bombs and all the flaming devices of the pyrotechnical art will be included. In addition there will be numerous special features, hand concerts, vaudeville and circus acts in which headlines of the footlights and tanhark will appear. The spectacle and accompanying program will be given each week-day evening of the Exposition in front of the grandstand and in by far the most elaborate and most pretentious offering yet presented for public entertainment by the Exposition management.

From The West Coast Greetings From Our Former Northfield Friend

Dear Northfield Herald:

In a community like Northfield, having not only its summer residents but many others who come and go from year to year, your arrival through the mail at distant points forms a link in a chain of common interests joining the distant members of the Northfield family with its townspeople. You reach the Pacific coast regularly each Tuesday morning. Sometimes you make an extra dash and are here Monday afternoon.

"Time" says, "Names make news," and it is through your "Personal and Local" columns that we keep in touch with those with whom we come in contact on visits to the village and those who are still our friends when we are absent.

It has been said that no matter where we go, we meet someone who knows somebody whom we know. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Albert W. Beaven, President of Colgate-Rochester Theological Seminary, well known in Northfield and who has been heard many times from the Auditorium platform, picked up at our beach among the firs of the Pigeon Point coast, and pitched horseshoes behind our little cottage. I had a very pleasant conversation with him, in which we mentioned Northfield, as we gathered driftwood to light a beach fire. Dr. Beaven, who was obliged to decline an invitation to speak at the Northfield Conference this season because of other engagements, is on his way to the Northern Baptist Convention at San Francisco, stopping here to visit his sister, Mrs. Willard Bricey, of Mount Vernon, this state (Washington).

Rev. John Morgan Currie, for the past four years pastor of the First Baptist Church of Mount Vernon, where I spent the past winter, recently resigned and returned to Melrose, Mass., whence he and his family came to this coast. He offered to take me back to Massachusetts with them if I consent to ride in their trailer! The Curries attended the Northfield Conference the summer before they came West, and when living in Grand Rapids some years ago were personal friends of Mr. Trotter.

Soon after my arrival, a leading physician and surgeon of Mount Vernon asked me if I had ever met Mr. Albert E. Roberts, Mount Hermon's present Alumni Secretary. While a Y. M. C. A. student in Massachusetts some years ago, Mr. Roberts gave this doctor, then a student in Boston, his first summer job—work in a Y. M. C. A. camp in Maine. Mr. Roberts, the doctor said, spoke in this city two years ago before the Kiwanis Club in the interests of the Y. M. C. A.

One Sunday in the past winter I turned on the radio and unexpectedly heard a service broadcast from a Baptist Church in Calgary, Alberta. I listened for Mr. Pattison's voice, but it proved to be the Westmoreland Baptist and not the First Baptist Church of which Mr. Pattison is minister. In correspondence with Mrs. Pattison, I learned the dates and stations from which Mr. Pattison's services were broadcast, but these broadcasts were disappointingly unavailable here.

It is a pleasure to know that Rev. Mr. Carne and his family are in Northfield. I have known Mr. Carne in Gorham, Maine, for a number of years past.

Mail being forwarded in my care is bringing the joy of anticipating a visit from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taber and their son, Charles Henry, of East Northfield upon their arrival in Washington.

Our little summer colony, Snee-Oosh Beach, somewhat resembles Rustic Ridge, if you will imagine a beach in place of Birnam Road, salt water in place of the Seminary campus, and tall firs in place of pines. Just now the woods are fragrant with wild sycinga (called here "wild orange") and spirea, both abundant and growing as tall as fifteen feet. On Whidby Island, directly opposite our shore, the woods in June are colorful with wild rhododendrons, and "Rhododendron Day" is observed annually. Snee-Oosh Beach is on an island, on the opposite side of which is situated a Swinomish Indian reservation. The word "Snee-Oosh," which has rather a sneaky sound, is Swinomish for "over ponder." We look out over fir-covered islands to the peaks of the Olympic Mountains, and beyond these islands, thirty miles due West is the city of Victoria, B. C.—a delightful little sail.

Salmon traps run out from the shore; about half-mile of net at the end of which is a large net-trap in which the fish are caught. From two to five tons of salmon are raised from one trap twice weekly during the fishing season. These are taken in scows to Seattle or Bellingham for shipment East. The owner of the largest trap here is a Mr. George McMillan, who has an attractive summer bungalow on the cliff above. Others of our neighbors are Holtons, Piersons, Georges, and Moody—quite an East Northfield community. These great quantities of fish (and one can buy a handsome large salmon at the traps for a few cents), the abundant production of fruit, berries, and cherries that are going to waste or are being sold at prices unprofitable to the growers, together with the vast stretches of unoccupied land and the temperate climate on this coast, make one wish for a speedy solution of the problem of transportation that will carry these food supplies to hungry families, and bring those crowded in inadequate and unhealthy city lodgings out into the freedom and health of this great out-of-doors.

To a New Englander it is a new experience to bathe in the salt water beneath snow-capped mountains. The white-crowned peaks of the rugged Olympics, on the ocean coast beyond the Sound, are seen to the southwest. Mount Baker is northwest of us, perhaps seventy-five miles away.

In Western Washington dollar bills are seldom seen in circulation. It may be said that here one's pocket jingles with money even in times of economic stress, but to an Easterner the silver dollars commonly used are heavy and cumbersome in one's purse.

In renewing subscription to the Northfield Herald, I cannot refrain from expressing appreciation of its excellence as a local town weekly. The set-up of the first page, with its modest but clear headings that are so convenient to the eye, covering the more important news, is an example of first-page news display that may well be followed by many another local paper whose first page is more or less a crossword puzzle at first glance. From your "Items of Interest" one can get concise information on various subjects that might be overlooked in reading a daily paper. As "names make news," the personal items are of special interest to the prodigals of the Northfield family. Occasionally I read another Massachusetts small-town weekly newspaper, but its appearance emphasizes the contrast between its pages and yours in facility of reading. I think the present Northfield newspaper is the best in many years.

Very truly yours,
Harriet Richards.
La Conner, Wash.
July 7th, 1932.

Editors Note: Many will be pleased to read this word of greeting from Miss Richards—so long associated with Mr. A. G. Moody in his work at his office in Kenard. Miss Richards made many friends here all of whom regretted her leaving Northfield.

When To Stop Advertising

When every man has become so thoroughly a creature of habit that he will certainly buy this year where he bought last year.

When younger and fresher and spunkier concerns in your line cease starting up and using the newspapers in telling the people how much better they can do for them than you can.

When nobody else thinks "it pays to advertise."

When population ceases to multiply and the generations that crowd on after you, and never heard of you coming on.

When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can ever get anywhere outside of your store.

When you perceive it to be the rule that men, who never do and never did advertise are outstripping their neighbors in the same line of business.

When men stop making fortunes right in your sight, solely through the discreet use of this mighty agent.

When you can forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful business men concerning the main cause of their prosperity.

When you would rather have your own way and fail than take advice and win.

When you want to go out of business with a stock on hand.

When you want to get rid of the trouble of waiting on customers.

250,000 In State Receiving Relief

"It's a startling statement and an actual fact" according to Richard K. Conant, state commissioner of Public Relief when he addressed recently the meeting of State Relief officers.

"There are more than 50,000 families in the state, or 250,000 persons now in receipt of public assistance." "The assistance usually averages $10 a week per family, and there are many large families receiving $15 or $20 a week. The relief expenditures of the state, cities and towns have increased from $7,000,000 in 1928 to $12,000,000 in 1931.

"Public relief has never pretended to be unemployment insurance. It is a poor tool to use in dealing with the thousands of normal families applying to us today for relief simply because the wage earner cannot find a job. These normal self-respecting wage earners need and ask for wages rather than relief."

"The communities cannot afford to let the burden of this unemployment situation fall solely upon the boards of public welfare. Some cities have demonstrated effectively that an employment committee paying wages from funds raised by public subscription or by city appropriation can hold the situation so that there is no raid upon the public welfare office. Such unemployment committees have been of great assistance to the boards of public welfare. The employment provided by such a committee should be kept separate from the work which the public welfare department is providing for people who are receiving aid and the applications for it should be made at a separate office."

He concluded with the statement that "if there should be another winter of unemployment, the only hope in the situation would be to have such an employment committee in every city and town in Massachusetts."

Missionary Fete Last Saturday

A missionary fete, directed by Marguerite Hazzard of Union Seminary, New York City, was given last Saturday afternoon on Marquand Field by the camps of the Home Missions Conference. The practical use of the Bible and the singing of hymns held an important part in the pageant.

Camp McWhorter was led by Mrs. E. A. Brubaker of Washington, D. C., first appeared asking the question, "What is the use of home missions?" Five camps then answered this question, exemplifying different branches of work, interpreting it in the light of the life of Christ. The Babe in Bethlehem was illustrated by migrant work on the part of Camp Westminster, (the Presbyterian group) led by Esther McRuer, New York City; the Boy in Nazareth, by the work in the mountains of the south for children on the part of Camp Luther, (the Lutheran group) led by Mrs. W. G. Boomhower, Jersey City, N. J.; then came Camp Kayapha led by Helen F. Smith, New York City, illustrating the teaching of Christ in the Negro schools of the country; Christ the healer, work in the hospitals for the American Indian, was shown by Camp Eendracht, (Reformed Church in America), led by Mrs. J. H. Rumph, Hollis, New York; the command, "Follow Me," given by Christ was accepted by Camp Saengawea, (Baptist) led by Dorothy Bucklin of Boston, as they showed the work of the city missions. The details of speaking and manuscript were worked out entirely by the different camps.

A picnic was enjoyed at the close of the pageant on the hillside near Marquand Hall. The Round Top service was led by Esther McRuer, who spoke on Joy. In the evening motion pictures of "Vanishing Frontiers," and "New Indian Trails" were shown in Silverthorne Hall.

Dairymen Organize In Western Counties

A small group of representatives from the Hampshire, Franklin and Hampden Counties Dairymen's association drew nearer to their goal, the formation of a "Western Counties Milk Producers' Association." These men assembled at Northampton to consider the by-laws of the proposed association and the contract that will govern each member of the association.

The discussion on the by-laws and the contract governing entry into the organization was led by Prof. Harold Rowe of Massachusetts State college who prepared the legal forms connected with the by-laws and the contract.

Present at the meeting were the following representatives: Fred Dole of Shelburne and Edward Graves of Conway, from the Franklin County Dairymen's association; Edward P. West and Carl Pratt of Hadley and Charles Norris from the Hampshire County Dairymen's association, and Clarence Brown of Brimfield and A. M. Walker of Monson from the Hampden County Dairymen's association. Wilbur T. Lock, Hampden county extension agent and James P. McClelland of the state department of agriculture, attended the meeting in advisory capacities.

It will be the duty of these representatives to return to their respective associations to outline the details of the by-laws and entry contract. These men will meet again at the call of the chair.

America is counting cylinders and AMERICA PREFERS THE SIX

Since January 1st, buyers have chosen more Chevrolet Sixes than the combined total of all fours and all eights priced below $1000

When buying a low-priced car, do as America is doing: Count cylinders! And you'll say, as America is saying: "SIX! No more. No less!" America is saying that in the most convincing way it could possibly be said! With SALES! Since January 1st, the public has purchased more Chevrolet Sixes than the combined total of all four-cylinder cars and all eights priced under $1000.

Why? America counted cylinders and came to this conclusion: six is the ideal number for a car of lowest price! No more, because an engine with extra cylinders is bound to cost more for gas, oil and upkeep. No less, because six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have in a car and avoid the undesirable effects of inherent vibration.

A six, as Chevrolet builds it, is the happy medium between two extremes. It gives unexcelled economy.

No other motor car engine in America today costs so little for gas, oil and upkeep. It gives built-in smoothness. From 6 miles an hour to 65 or 70, Chevrolet is quietly, comfortably, enjoyably

and BUILT-IN SMOOTHNESS
With more than six-cylinders you sacrifice economy—With less than six cylinders you sacrifice smoothness.

smooth. And because of this smoothness—plus the fact that the whole car is so solidly, ruggedly built—Chevrolet is a low-priced automobile that really stands up. It's a good, reliable, economical car the day you buy it... and it keeps on being good, reliable, economical after 5,000—10,000—15,000 miles of driving.

In addition, Chevrolet is a modern car, with Free Wheeling, Synchro-Mesh gear-shifting, Fisher bodies—and many other advanced features. Be cylinder-wise! Follow America's lead and make your next low-priced car a six—a Chevrolet Six! Unless you do, you can't expect the smoothness, economy and lasting satisfaction to which your money rightfully entitles you.

Right now you car-owners are "sitting pretty" . . . You can buy more safe, comfortable, trouble-free mileage for a dollar than in any previous summer . . . You don't have to put up with second-choice tires for reasons of economy, because first-choice tires cost you no more! . . . Four years ago, almost to the day, Alfred E. Smith sat before a radio in the Governors' mansion at Albany and heard his friend Franklin Roosevelt extol the virtues of the "Happy Warrior" to the delegates at Houston. It was the second national convention in which Roosevelt pleaded with the Democrats to take Smith as their standard-bearer. The sheer earnestness of the man who got out of a sick bed to make the nominating speech had much to do with Smith's overriding the two-thirds vote to victory.

What a difference four short years made! This year Roosevelt sat before the same radio at Albany and heard the "Happy Warrior" nominated by another. This time Smith was in the convention hall—with but one purpose. To defeat the man who was his friend. What was the cause of this rift? Many have been asking the question, but the public does not yet know the answer. It does not care now whether it ever knows, though it may still be curious in a speculative sort of way. For want of an explanation it has come to the conclusion that perhaps political jealousy is at the bottom of it.

Was it because Roosevelt received more votes than Smith received in New York State in 1928? Or was it because Smith felt that he was entitled to have the nomination again this year and that Roosevelt should have let him have it?

The apparent bitterness in the convention, and Smith's petty conduct in permitting the distribution by his henchmen of circulars attacking Roosevelt served only to convince the Roosevelt delegates that Smith was guilty of colossal ingratitude. The incessant booing by some of the Smith delegates during the balloting intensified the feeling that Smith was out all costs to knife his one-time friend.

As he sat there in the convention hall, through the early balloting, Smith must have known that he was beaten and abandoned. Governor Ely's speech was dramatic—the best of all the nominating speeches—but, while it elicited a fervent demonstration among his own cohorts, it did not sweep as an irresistible force across the great stadium.

The Ritchie delegates dipped their colors at mention of Smith's name, but this was only a gesture from the man who was Smith's second choice. The spontaneity of the demonstration came from the galleries—but they weren't voting. If the crowds there that hung on every word spoken from the floor could have voted, Smith would have been nominated on the first ballot.

The spectacle put on by Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey and the 65 votes from his own State was colorful enough, but the futility of it must have been early apparent to the not so happy warrior. It might have been vastly different if Mr. Smith had not waited so long before declaring that he wanted a second nomination.

Five thousand whisky, gin and pop bottles.

Pocketbooks in large number. Valuable papers.

Twenty thousand used flashlight bulbs.

Five hundred damaged chairs and dozens of broken standard poles.

Well its interesting but it makes one wonder what was in the bottles. Probably cold water?

Winchester Baseball

The Winchester baseball club journeyed to Amherst, Mass., last Saturday and defeated the strong Amherst American Legion team 4-2. The game was marked with superb pitching by Lefty Goddard, Winchester moundsman who allowed the Amherst batters but four scattered hits. Winchester scored a run in the first on hit by P. Davis, Charlie Hanna and an out at first. From then until the sixth inning it was a pitchers battle between Goddard and Pat Joy, but in the sixth timely hitting of Roling, Pratt and Burns netted the New Hampshire team three more runs to put the game on ice. Goddard weakened slightly in the 8th, and hits by Ball and Joy coupled with an error gave the home team their two markers. The game was played on the Amherst College diamond which is one of the best in the east.

Batteries: Winchester, Goddard, and Pratt. Amherst, P. Joy and Dorsey. Umpire Robinson.

A return game played on Anderson field Warwick with the fast Amherst American Legion team turned out to be the best game played on a Winchester diamond for many years. "Bill" Davis for the home team and Alndry for Amherst pitched superb ball for the regulation nine innings, each allowing four hits during that time. Landry came very near winning his own game in the ninth inning when he laced a double to left field with L. Shumway on first base. The ball was fielded fast by Burns and he threw out Shumway at the plate by making practically a perfect throw to catcher Pratt.

Winchester also made a bid in the ninth when Lefty Goddard hit a pretty three base smash to right field, but no one could score him. Then in the last of the eleventh inning a single by Rollins and a double by "Red" Kibbe gave Winchester the all important run.

Another good feature of the game was the inauguration of Billy Dalton of Northfield as umpire of balls and strikes and we can say that he did a swell job and was O. K'd by both teams and the fans as well.

Next Sunday, July 17th, Winchester will play the strong Hadley Mass. A. C. with the Jekanowski brothers of Colby and Bates Colleges in the lineup.

Batteries: Winchester, W. Davis and Pratt. Amherst, Landry, and Keedy. Umpires, Dalton and Durbinski.

"THE MAN FROM YESTERDAY"

"WEEK-END MARRIAGE"

"The Man From Yesterday" begins with a war romance, but its drama is centered in after-the-war confusion. Clive Brook a British officer on leave, meets Claudette Colbert, a war nurse, in Paris. After for the front. Later, Brook is incorrectly reported dead. Claudette when the war ends, has found a new love in Charles Boyer, a doctor who helped her during the difficult years. She is the mother of Brook's child.

Boyer, convinced that Brook is dead, urges Claudette to marry him. She intuitively believes Brook to be alive, and refuses, although now at her love is centered in Boyer. Together they take a holiday in Switzerland. There, at a rehabilitation center, Brook, a war-racked veteran clinging to life by a thread, finds Claudette. Brook discovers that her love for him is dead. That he has no place in her life. He makes "the noble gesture," leaving Claudette and Boyer to find joy in their love.

The story of "Week-end Marriage" which is based on the novel by Faith Baldwin and was adapted for the screen by Sheridan Gibney, starts with Lola and Ken, the two lovers, working for their respective living in offices. When Ken is offered a fine position in South America, Lola's sister helps her in tricking Ken into a proposal of marriage which, of course, keeps him from going to South America. But Ken is sincerely in love, and so is Lola, and in the first flush of their married life they are very happy, but as they both work and have their outside interests, the spirit of competition enters. Through a series of quirks of Fate, it soon develops that Lola has the better position and earns the bigger salary—which does not help the husband's vanity very much. He turns to another woman. It also serves as the basis for the gradual breaking up of their marriage and the various adventures, misadventures and intriguing situations which make up the balance of the entertaining plot.

"The Dark Horse" deals ostensibly with state politics, but is modelled, nevertheless, along the lines of national political campaigns. There are characters written into "The Dark Horse" by Terret, that movie fans will recognize as great political figures.

"The Dark Horse" was directed by Alfred E. Green from the story by an anonymous author.

The specially selected cast includes Frank McHugh, Sam Hardy, Robert Warwick, Harry Holman, Charles Sellon, Robert Emmett O'Connor and Burton Churchill, all of whom are seen in political party roles. Alfred E. Green directed.

"SYMPHONY OF SIX MILLION"

Richard Barthelmess in "Alias the Doctor" his latest First National success has been a movie star for fifteen years. His first starring picture was "Tol'able David," one of the screen's outstanding memories.

Barthelmess has earned his high place in the film heavens by more than accident or personality or profile. He has brought intelligence, hard work and sincerity to each role he has played, knowing that those are the requirements for continuous stardom. He also displays a versatility which enables him to change with picture progress and to play any type of role offered him.

It is an axiom among motion picture producers that a Fannie Hurst story is sure box-office material.

Miss Hurst rarely writes directly for the screen, contenting herself with her own particular medium—the novel. However, she considered a recent story idea of hers so well adapted for the screen that she wrote it especially for that purpose.

This story is "Symphony of Six Million."

Like her rivals, the film is an intimate, almost clinical insight into the hopes and disillusionments, the pains and joys of a great slice of the American people. It tells the story of an East Side, New York youth who becomes fired with the zeal to heal the mental and physical wounds of his people.

He becomes a doctor who devotes his great talents to ministering to his people without any pay until the stress of economics and an ambitious family drive him to rich Park Avenue. A beautiful romance with a teacher in the Ghetto gives the picture the fine feeling prevalent in all works by this author.

The Prohibition Question

With one of the major parties committed to outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the other committed to the submission of that amendment with Constitutional provisions which will protect the dry states, the question is placed in such a position that a certain element will have no trouble in determining how to vote, while others have cause to give the matter much thought.

The historical aspects of the liquor question are enlightening. For seventy years or more the fight against the traffic has grown, first, under various kinds of local options during the latter part of the last century, and then under state control in several parts of the country for nearly three decades.

For various reasons it became the conviction of many that the control of the liquor traffic, either under local option or state control, was impossible and that the only solution was to prohibit its manufacture and sale as a beverage by an amendment to the Federal Constitution.

It was claimed by some that the principal reason why such an amendment was needed was because the distillers and brewers prostituted all effort at control of the traffic. Others claimed that the use of liquor had so weakened the resistance of drinkers to its temptation that the only solution was nationwide prohibition. Still others held that man's perverse nature was such that any form of legislative enactment to control his appetites would not succeed and it would be futile to put such a burden on the Federal Government.

Now that prohibition is a federal law there are many who claim that both the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act are failures and that we must, according to the Democratic platform, return to the states full control of the liquor traffic, and according to the Republican platform yield to the states part control. But those who support the Eighteenth Amendment claim that there has been a decided improvement in the morals and physical welfare of the average individual and family since its adoption, and that time in which to establish the full benefits of the amendment will run against the arguments of those who would repeal it.

Those who favor repeal refer to unusual criminal activities, an increased number of murders, these new socially destructive activities called racketeering, a general disrespect for the law, the inability to enforce the Volstead Act, the increased cost of government and the loss of revenues which would accrue to the city, state and national governments if the liquor traffic were taken out of the illegal control of gangsters and legalized under the control of the states.

In a general rejoinder to the above the national prohibitionists say that the issue is confused by a poor memory of prior conditions on the part of the older citizens; by the lack of information of about 10,000,000 young voters who have no knowledge of the viciousness of the old regime under the local option and state control of the liquor traffic, and by a failure of many to analyze cause and effect in what is regarded as social abnormalities.

Speaking specifically to the points advanced against the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, the national prohibitionists claim that it was the greatest volume of crime which brought about that amendment. They cite the legislative investigation in the State of New York which they claim laid 75 per cent of the crime of New York City on the unrestrained use of strong drink under state control.

They refer to the report of the Massachusetts State Bureau of Statistics of Labor to the legislature of that state in a pre-prohibition year which they say shows that 75 per cent of the adult paupers of Massachusetts were addicted to the use of liquor; that 96.44 per cent of all the adult criminals were liquor addicts, and that 51.44 per cent of all insane adults were liquor addicts.

Based upon state, municipal and other reports made prior to the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, the national prohibitionists claim that for every liquor gangster that has been murdered because he "squealed," every person who has met a similar fate because he "knew too much" or became a strong competitor of some "big shot," there were several more murders committed in drunken brawls in the old saloon days. They claim that many of those murdered under the old regime were nominally good citizens who were murdered in the heat of drunken passion, whereas most of the gangsters who are murdered have criminal records. Some claim that the increased criminal activities and racketeering not connected with the liquor traffic are largely due to bad social and economic conditions which cause a certain element to seek money by easy and devious ways. Some also claim that racketeering and criminal activities connected with the liquor traffic are largely due to the same social and economic causes.

Those who support the Eighteenth Amendment further declare that the disrespect for law, both in the large centers and small communities, is not comparable to the number of violations of the law which took place in the old saloon days. They claim that the various reports on the conduct of licensed saloons in the United States show that most of them sold intoxicating beverages after hours, on Sundays, to minors and to drunken persons. For violations and every form of disrespect of the law they cite an official report on the question particularly the very full report of the Chicago Commission on the Liquor Problem, dated December, 1916, and the report of the Chicago Vice Commission which made an investigation of the city saloon conditions in 1911.

Short History
Of Northfield
Seminary Campus

Northfield Seminary was founded in 1879. The first class of 25 girls lived and studied in Mr. D. L. Moody's house, now The Homestead, until the first building, East Hall, was ready in 1880. Then followed: Marquand Hall, dormitory, 1885; Stone Hall, recitation and Conference headquarters, 1885; Weston Hall, dormitory, 1887; Talcott Library, 1888; Betsey Moody Cottage, hospital, 1890; The Auditorium, seating capacity 2500, 1894; Skinner Gymnasium, 1895; Henry Moore Cottage, dormitory, 1899; Home Science Hall, 1907; Margaret Olivia Music Hall, 1909; Russell Sage Chapel, seating capacity 1000, 1909; Gould Hall, dormitory, 1912; Kenarden Hall, administration building, 1913; Palmer Hall, recitation, 1927; Henry C. Munger Swimming Pool, the most recent addition to the Campus, 1931.

Swimming

The Northfield Seminary swimming pool is open to Conference guests a certain part of each day. It is necessary however for delegates to have certificates of health from their home doctors, and after their arrival at Northfield to secure cards of admission and instructions for use of the pool.

Admission to the city, state and national governments have a book loss from liquor revenues as such, they claim that this is insignificant compared with the amount of revenues received from wealth invested in real estate and personal savings which go to build up the industries of the country, all of which are socially constructive.

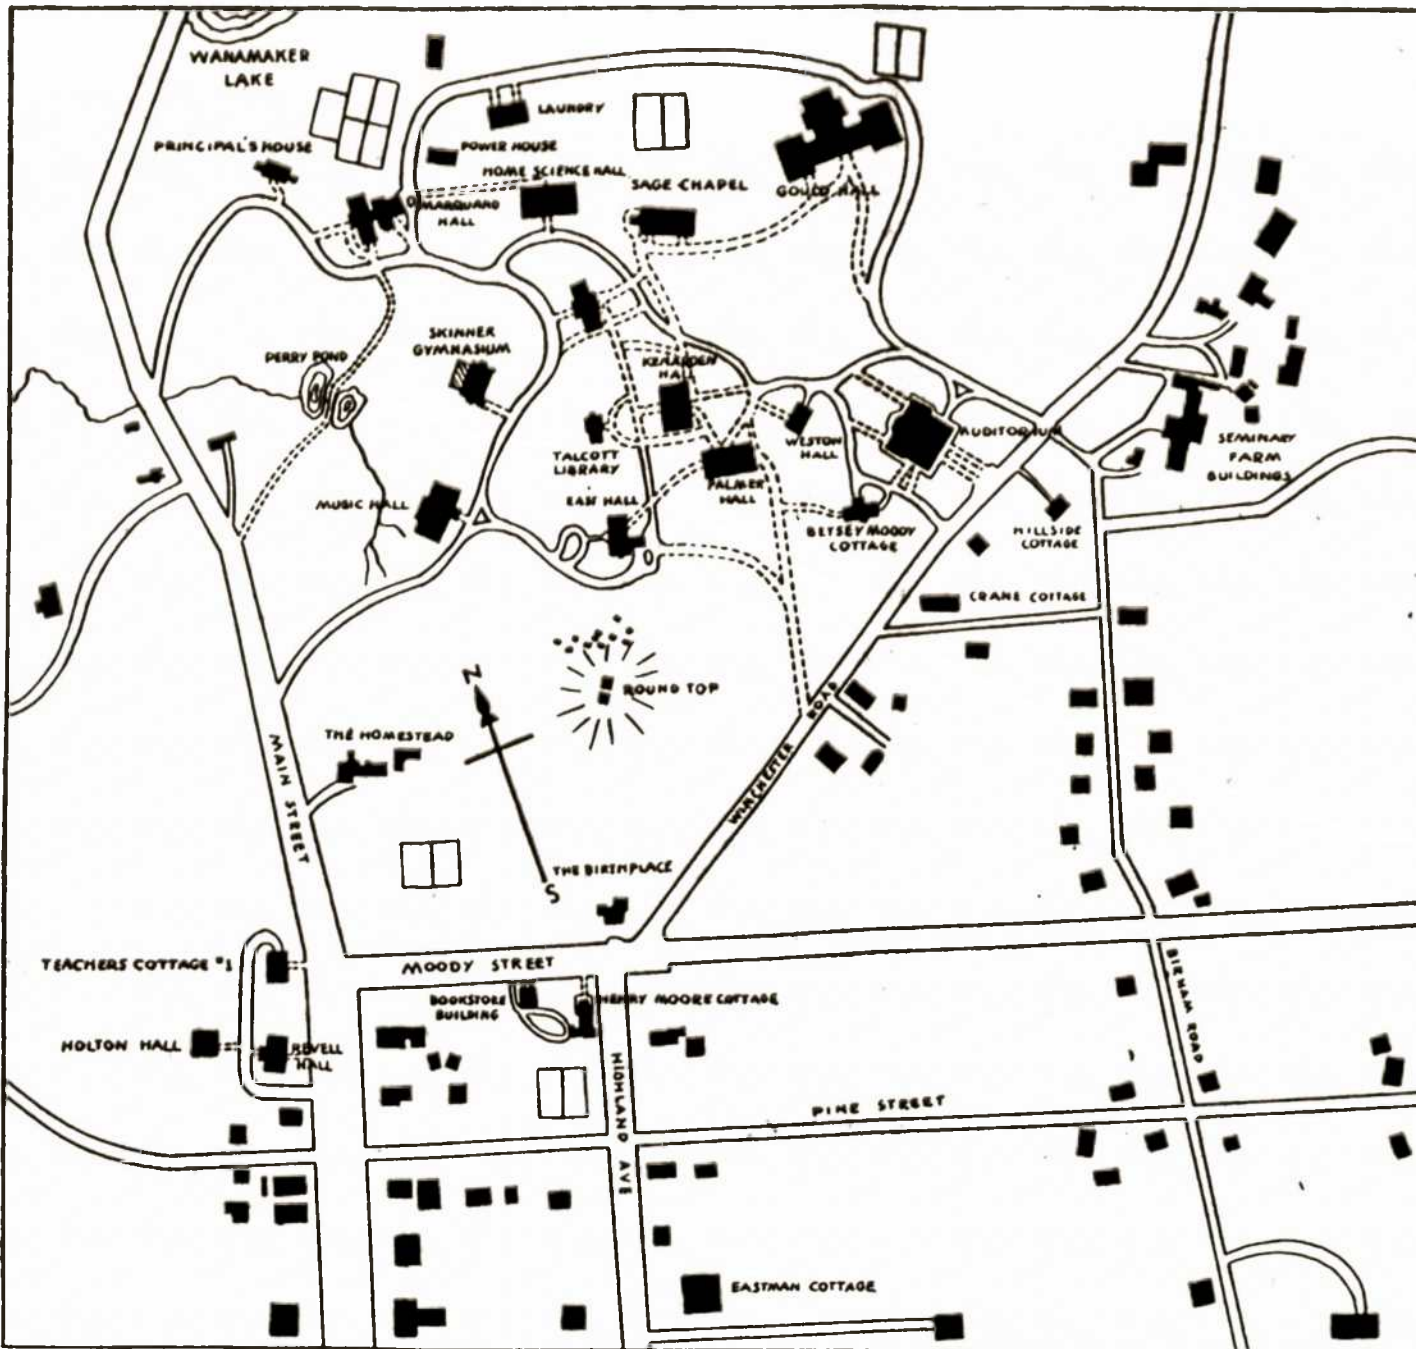

Based on their claims on the findings of scientists, economists and insurance actuaries and admitting ostensible economic values to the contrary, they hold that intoxicating beverages destroy the moral, physical and social welfare of those who consume them; that, therefore, the retail liquor bill of approximately $2,300,000,000 in 1916 (for example), with all its book revenues to the city, state and national governments, and with all the resultant exchange of money in wages and capital in its manufacture and distribution, there was a distinct social and economic loss.

It is claimed by some who favor the return of state control of the liquor traffic that the opponents discount the good results attained by the states in solving the liquor problems. Others claim that while there were violations of the license laws by the saloons, there were comparatively few speakeasies and bootleggers, whereas now, there are as many "speakeasies" as there were saloons in the old days. Conceding the baneful effect of the traffic under the old saloon, some means, they say, should be set up under state laws which will more effectively handle the problem than is now being done. Still others maintain that since the liquor problem has been put in the Federal Government too much dependence has been placed upon the purely legal aspects of the question and that all local moral support is lost to the cause of increased temperance. It is their opinion that the problem can be better handled by some form of federal and state control where, in local moral responsibility will have freer play.

Though there is a marked difference in the proposals of the major political parties for dealing with the prohibition question, it appears to be the hope of many sincere leaders in both parties that a division will not be so sharply drawn as to overshadow important economic and other social problems, the adjustment of which will help solve the phases of the liquor question.

State Legion Auxiliary Invited To Northfield

Northfield, Greenfield and Northampton are being considered for the place of meeting of the State Legion Auxiliary meeting for 1933.

At the recent state convention held in Swampscott an invitation was extended by District 2, which comprises this section of the state, to hold the convention in this vicinity and the invitation was accepted. It is rumored however that Greenfield is likely to be selected.

The annual meeting of the district council was held recently at Orange and formal invitations from the three places were presented, that for Greenfield being placed before the meeting by Mrs. Laura Pirog, president of the local Legion Auxiliary. All three invitations will be forwarded to the department office, together with the facilities which each place has for entertaining the delegates and the department officers will later choose which town will get the convention. The national convention of the order will be held in June 1933, at Portland, Oregon.

State Checks Tax Exempt

The two-cent federal tax on bank checks cannot be collected from the state.

Cloudburst Does Damage To Road

The heavy downpour of rain last Friday afternoon virtually amounted to a cloudburst in the Gill-Millers Falls section and did considerable damage to the new road construction on both sides of the river. The damage was caused by washouts. Catch basins were buried, drop inlets flooded gullies five feet wide and four feet deep were washed in the shoulders of the road.

As a result of the damage, the completion of the highway will be delayed about a week, engineers reported, and trucks and men will have to be put to work undoing the work of the storm.

Northfield And The Conferences

A friend of The Herald has had an interesting article descriptive of the Northfield Conference which was published in Zion's Herald, August 19, 1908 and written by President W. P. Thirkield now known as Bishop Thirkield who has been in town recently and known as a good friend of Northfield's institutions:—

"At Northfield, on the shores of the Connecticut, winding in rare beauty among the hills, Dwight L. Moody was born. Here, also, stands the living monument of the great evangelist. 'Round Top,' a hill, with a superb outlook which he loved, is his sepulchre. The inscription on the plain slab over his body is pertinent and significant: 'He that doeth the will of God abideth forever.' But his real monument is the Mount Hermon School for boys and the Seminary for girls, and the annual Northfield Conferences, held on the campus and in the buildings of the Seminary. Here during July and August thousands gather for spiritual culture and fellowship, and for larger equipment for service through the study of the Word and its interpretation in sermon and song.

At Northfield you find yourself in a spiritual atmosphere, an Atmosphere of Faith and Holy Trust and joy in the Christian life. Every note struck is positive and evangelical. There is no negative criticism. Higher criticism is not so much as named. Your own conception of the truth may be sometimes jarred. Certain interpretations may not fit in with what you take to be the larger and more helpful view. But it is amazing what a stimulus to faith and what a fresh inspiration to love and consecration and service come through the simple, straight-forward, faithful putting of the old Gospel as the wisdom of God and the power of God.

In this "Conference for Christian Workers" I would say that the dominant thought is the concentration of the mind on the Divine thought and will, as expressed in the Word; the dominant spirit of faith is the sense of an ever-present Christ just as real as in apostolic days; the dominant attitude is that of adoration, issuing in glad and holy and reverent worship; the dominant purpose is preparation and equipment for service through the study of the Word and the ministry of intercession.

The Conference makes strong appeal to men and women awakened to the need of larger equipment for service. It attracts ministers who long for deeper spiritual life and power, and a stronger hold on the living Word they are to preach. I found eighteen Methodists from one Conference, and many from Conferences stretching from Maine to Baltimore. Some have come regularly for a dozen years. "What do you get here?" I asked of an alert, progressive Methodist preacher. "I get fresh endowment of power for my work," said he. "I go back with fruitful suggestions for sermons for the winter, through a stronger grip on the Word of God and fresh interpretations of whole books and special passages of Scripture." And this is essentially the testimony of ten or more of our brethren with whom I specially conferred.

While I was at the Conference the problem of the modern camp-meeting pressed itself deeply on my thought. The need for the old-time camp-meeting, which was a power in its day, is in well-church sections not so apparent. Many of them are dying out. The grafting on of the Chautauqua idea hasn't saved them. You can't have a fortnight of popular lectures and entertainments, and then turn the order of proceedings into a camp meeting, to the edification of the saints and the conversion of sinners. And it is pathetic, it is indeed startling, to observe the commercial spirit manifest in getting sensational preachers for Sunday, and collecting gate fees to pay expenses and keep certain of these enterprises from debt. This is all too common. Why not try the Northfield plan? Why not make these camps into schools for Bible study and the training of Christian workers, and also through evangelistic efforts make them centres of revival power? One brother reported to me such a change of order this year in the Newark Conference camp-meeting, resulting in large attendance and deep and abiding impressions for good.

My first view of the Conference was on Saturday night. The superb auditorium was well filled. From 7 to 8 came the praise-service, led by Mr. Alexander. One is also held from 9 to 10 a. m. daily. The leader is a man of power.

A Singing Evangel.
"What is the best thing you get here in an inspirational way?" I asked a minister. "Alexander," was the prompt answer. He is a wonder. There is a big choir, but, with him, the whole vast audience of 2,500 is a choir, and is swayed by him. They all sing. And such melody and power in gospel song I have never heard. It is devout and fervently religious. This work is the passion of his life. He was born in the hills of Tennessee. You must know he is a Methodist from the fervency of his "Amen." His marrying a millionaire wife in England evidently hasn't marred his simplicity and fervor. Good reason, for his wife sings in the choir, and is an earnest Christian worker. You should hear him leading that large, cultivated audience in the fervent singing of the old camp-meeting melody that we used to sing in Georgia. "Tis the old-time religion, and it's good enough for me."

Unique as is "Charlie" Alexander—Robert Harkness, the accompanist, is as extraordinary and was born and converted to complement his work. Playmate in a show in Australia the revival singing caught him and brought him to Christ. Now he plays with his

And that his compositions are to give a new and nobler note in gospel hymnology, is evidenced by the tunes already written, which are singing themselves into the hearts of all the people here. Mr. Naftzger, son of a Methodist minister, is a favorite soloist, and is engaged to accompany Dr. Chapman in his proposed tour around the world.

The speaker for the evening service was Dr. John Douglass Adam. He is A Man with a Message.

His mind is steeped in the Gospel. He takes hold of the deeper things in the spiritual life. A man of keen insight, he has opened the hidden springs, and the secret of the Lord is his. He is a Scotchman with a pronounced accent. He now preaches at East Orange, N. J. Stout and sturdy of body, he has a manly presence. His utterance is often with vehemence. His word carries conviction. He is also intensely practical. His theme was "Christ's Appeal to the Heroic," based on the word, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself," etc. He made plea for a heroism in consecration—a word now worn out. Do not live in the shallows of consecration. Get out into the deeps, and live there where you must trust God. There is need of heroism in covering the distance between creed and practice. Too many live in an atmosphere of mere religious phraseology, pure cant. Put thinking into living, in domestic and all social relations. There is call for heroism in dealing with the near rather than the far, with the crises in your own soul first, with the unconverted in your own home. The need of today is not so much extensive strength as intensive power. John Wesley saw this clearly. Christ is calling you to heroism in facing the impossible tasks. Three great words of the Bible are God, impossibility, achievement. Again he said: It is not enough to live your religion. You must communicate, testify, witness. You are not called to argue, but to witness."
